Dear ND-BG Community,

The entertainment industry can be very unpredictable as we've just experienced. We regret to announce that the creative team at Amazon has chosen an alternate location from Notre Dame-Bishop Gibbons for their in-production television series. As a result, Notre Dame-Bishop Gibbons will remain open next week for in-person learning.

While this is certainly disappointing, we are pleased to announce that Amazon has made an extremely generous contribution to our Science and Technology Fund despite their decision to film elsewhere. Also, the school's Administration and Development Team will continue to research and find "outside of the box" solutions to our long-term financial sustainability.

Please know that this change came as a surprise to all involved. Our teachers were fully equipped and prepared to provide virtual instruction to our entire student body next week and will remain that way should an emergency require the school to shut down for extended period.

We thank you for your support and continued prayers as we move forward with this unique school year.

Thank you,

Kianté Jones
Principal

A School of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Albany
